

Are you at home with your kids right now?

Ask them about the drug Ecstasy.

Go on. Ask them.

It's perfect. They're right here in the same house.

They're not at their friend's or at school. They're not at soccer practice.

They're right here - on your turf.

They're not even expecting you to ask.

So go on, ask them.

Ask them if they've ever heard of E. Or seen it. Or even tried it.

Think your kids are too good to do E? Then ask them exactly what kinds of kids do it.

Or maybe you're waiting for the perfect time to sit down and have "the talk"?

Well, can't you sit down right now?

So ask them.

You're having the debate in your head right now, aren't you? "Should I?" you're asking yourself. "Or am I going to be late for work?"

It takes two minutes.

And you've already spent that much time thinking about it.

If you don't ask them about Ecstasy right now, do you think you ever will?
